

Funny feeling at brekkie

KAREN Phillips encouraged more than 100 guests at a recent function to feel each other up for a cause.

The organiser of the Early Risers Breakfast gave a colourful talk about the importance of checking breasts, especially this month which is National Breast Cancer Awareness Month.

Phillips, with the help of plastic surgeon Craig Layt, had the audience in hysterics while making a serious point.

After the show, Phillips interviewed Layt, the CEO of Ray White The Surfers Paradise Group Andrew Bell, and Nudie juice boss James Ajaka.

CC asked the men how important was the role of the women in their lives.

"If things are good at home, then they are good in every other aspect of my life," said Ajaka.

Bell said his wife Sandy was one of the main reasons he moved to the Coast many years ago. "She's from California and this lifestyle seemed to suit her better," he said.

Top entrepreneurs share their secrets in tomorrow's Bulletin

James Ajaka, Gold Coast Publications MD Sylvia Bradshaw, Karen Phillips and Andrew Bell